The Veterinary Medicines Regulations 2013 (as amended) require the following to be kept by farmers:

- The keeper of a food-producing animal must keep the documentation on the acquisition of a veterinary medicinal product and the records relating to the product for at least five years following the administration or other disposal of the product, irrespective of whether or not the animal concerned is no longer in that keeper's possession or has been slaughtered or has died during that period
- The keeper of a food-producing animal must keep proof of purchase of all veterinary medicinal products acquired for the animal (or, if they were not bought, documentary evidence of how they were acquired)
- When a veterinary medicinal product is bought or otherwise acquired for a food producing animal, the keeper must at the time record -
  1. the name of the product and the batch number;
  2. the date of acquisition;
  3. the quantity acquired; and
  4. the name and address of the supplier.
- At the time of administration the keeper must record -
  1. the name of the product;
  2. the date of administration;
  3. the quantity administered;
  4. the withdrawal period; and
  5. the identification of the animals treated.

- A veterinary surgeon who administers a veterinary medicinal product to a food producing animal must personally record the above information relating to administration plus the batch number and their name in the keeper's records, or provide this information to the keeper in writing and the keeper must then enter it in their records.
- A keeper who disposes of any or all of the veterinary medicinal product other than by treating an animal must record, the date of disposal, the quantity of product involved and how and where it was disposed of.

There is no specific format required however it is required that the record be made as soon as practicable after administration.

The records described above can be kept either; on paper or as a computerised record. If kept on a computer an inspector may require the records to be produced in a form in which they may be taken away.
