

Giulios Boathouse

Giulio's Gelato, based at the Boathouse Café in Uphill, successfully applied for a REPF grant that helped them expand their in-house ice cream production.

Due to an increase in customer demand they wanted to increase production and storage. The grant money contributed towards a new batch freezer, which holds large batches of ingredients and makes the gelato, which is then put into a new blast freezer and finally, to ensure the ice cream is kept at the perfect temperature a new large walk-in freezer has been installed for improved storage of finished products.

With the new freezers, the grant has helped the business to create a fully functioning full-time factory which supplies the café and outdoor ice cream hut. The increased capacity is enabling the business itself to sell wholesale to other local businesses; it provides local jobs as well as attracting more people to the village of Uphill.
