

Taylor Made Training Ltd (Learn to Cave)

Taylor Made Training is a small cave guiding business in the Mendip Hills that takes people caving and climbing in this unique area. It successfully completed construction of an office base after securing grant money from the Rural England Prosperity Fund.

The grant enabled the construction of an insulated garden office and storage space, including electrical installations within the workspace. The photo shows the new office, complete with caving wellies drying outside!

The building is now fully functional, being used as an office to run the business from and as a caving store. As a result of having the office the small business is more efficient and has better storage for the caving equipment it hires out. It has noticed an increase in its turnover and has received more group bookings than previously (youth groups, scouts etc).

The REPF grant was pivotal in realizing the enhancements necessary to grow the business and improve its operational efficiency.
